SINGLE STANDARD OF MORALS IN AMERICA PLEA OF DR. RACHELLE YARROS TO MOTHERS OF EL PASO; URGES CHECKING OF DISEASE MENACE

By DOROTHY B. JOHNSTON.

THE world is today staggering beneath the realization that hundreds of thousands of innocent children and adult humanity fill the various institutions for the feeble minded, the reform schools, insane asylums, penitentiaries and jails. Still more there are at large, spreading crime and sin and illness and blindness and misery.

Until recently, society has been much too slow to call its worst sin by the correct name. It has even denied the existence. A few people, like Brexler and Goddard and Shaw, however, dared face the appalling truth, and organizations like the General Federation of Women's Clubs began discussing certain subjects along and appointing special hygiene committees and welfare specialists for the purpose, to stop the awful waste—a purely conservative movement.

Dr. Rachelle Yarros of Chicago, an American by adoption, who came many years ago from her native Russia, and who has made a reputation as one of the leading women physicians of the country, was honored in her appointment by the General Federation of Women's Clubs as the first chairwoman of its social hygiene department. She had become vitally interested in the subject while studying in Vienna, and later America.

This prominent woman has just been sent to El Paso to deliver a course of lectures under the auspices of the national war work council of the Y. W. C. A. and made two stirring talks Tuesday afternoon and evening in the gym of the new association building, Mrs. Henry T. Bowie presiding here. The first talk, "The Social Hygiene of the Nation," was to the women of the city, especially mothers, and started with a blazing barrage of unvarnished facts, set out with a 15 centimeter beam. In the evening she spoke to the business and professional women. Both audiences heard the capacity of the big room.

It has so happened that every army, the last, has had undesirable women who follow to the camps. Mobilization of the soldiers has meant mobilization of vice. It was of these dangers that Dr. Yarros spoke, especially of the venereal diseases, the increase of which has caused more harm than the war itself. England, Austria, France, Italy, America and Germany are all aware of its import, according to the speaker, who declared that Austria reported 50 deaths of its army sent back because of their soldiers being infected with the horrible disease.

Said Dr. Yarros: "In the United States, at the beginning of the war, the government was bombarded by telegrams from mothers and fathers, whose sons had entered the service, that care be taken of their boys. We were fortunate in having for president a man who has great love for young people and who, as president, the government decided that the men placed under their care would be taken good care of. They want the boys to keep pure, clean and contented, and because man cannot live by work alone, they began to plan for fine entertainments."

"Wait and see what type of a man your boy will be when he comes back," vehemently declared the speaker. "The boys are learning from the government what they should have known long ago from their parents. They are working hard, doing their best. The government is making finer boys for you. Not only from an economic standpoint that we need healthy, stronger soldiers, but when they come back they must be clean, else they would spread disease. Think what it means to parents to let their boys go. It should be a comfort to a mother's heart to know that he will be kept free from disease. He will do his great, his wonderful duty for his country, maybe die for the greatest thing the world has ever fought for—to free the world for democracy."

"In the camp the government is doing all it can to feed, clothe, protect and educate the boys. What is the civilian population doing?" asked Dr. Yarros. "When they leave their camps and come to our towns, do we send them back to the front? No, we send the women and men in the entertainment cities must help carry out the problem."

Bringing conditions very close to home, Dr. Yarros said that El Paso should not feel that the criticism on the border. "The citizens are not altogether responsible," she asserted. Hundreds of women were imported to degrade, to pull down the boys, for graft and money. The very experi-

Navy League Ships More Garments; Red Cross Work Continues Active

THE Navy League committee is making another big shipment of knitted garments today, which will be sent directly to the Washington Navy League to distribute to the sailor boys manning the transports and marine boats that are taking Uncle Sam's army safely to France. In this allotment, leaving on its mission today, are 74 sweaters, 25 pairs of socks, 12 mufflers, 23 pairs of wristlets, 15 helmets and 16 abdominal bandages—certainly a wonderful showing. A new lot of wool is expected in, any day, and will provide the loss of time given out to the volunteer knitters who do beautiful handiwork.

Mrs. William P. B. McCall, chairman, has been unflagging in her efforts since assuming office, and is blessed with a wonderful lot of helpers, headed by Mrs. W. H. Austin, who knitted the first pair of socks. It is to provide wool that the dances are held each month at the El Paso Hotel. These delightful affairs are, by the way, now in this planning for soon after Easter.

Mrs. Helen B. Paulsen, of the Redcliffe bureau, arrived in the city this morning, being among the first of the "Wakeup America" course for the local Red Cross.

This charming woman appears on the initial program, Friday afternoon, in the First Christian church, and will give a wonderful sort of a doll lecture for the children (though it will prove quite as fascinating to grown ups as to children). Her husband, a husband to woman and manhood represented by a Mother Goose character. The "Babes in the Woods" rhymes, for instance, will apply to the tiniest tots; Old King Cole naturally suggests the jolly father, Jack, the Giant Killer, is used for the High School age. And then comes the sweetest stage, where Brer Rabbit, Brer Fox and Tommy Raccoon, and the Sleeping Beauty and Prince Charming would, of course, make their appearance. The care in choosing a life made is punctuated at this particular point in the tale. Bean porridge hot, bean porridge cold—taken any way—suggests agreeableness. And she has a lovely old childhood tale for mischievous little folk. The three witches she weaves with a magic touch into the three temptations, with the greenie, the milking and the black cat character. Mrs. Paulsen plus psychology to every one of these favorite old rhymes that everyone knows since the cradle.

And a moral in ethics that is never forgotten is right then born in the minds of the eager listeners. Her lecture on "Community Consciousness" is said to be a powerful address.

Col. G. A. Garbheart, who lectures on "The Call of Democracy" the first night, has also arrived in El Paso.

Others of the Redcliffe group including P. A. Connolly, Dr. Benway, John G. Robertson and Dr. W. E. Adams, will be in the city this afternoon. Mrs. J. G. Barada, chairman, is very enthusiastic in the coming musical and literary course, and the season ticket sales already amount to several hundred dollars. This single afternoon for school children (25 cents) will be on sale, Thursday at the various schools. Several of Mrs. Paulsen's followers will go to the different buildings.

The parade is working out a huge thing. One of the features will be a big red cross of children. Each school group will represent some special allied country. Military bands will divide the sections or flanks, and there will be several floats, illustrating the work being done by the women of El Paso.

The Red Cross sale of flower bulbs and plants, held by the women of the "First Christian" church, Monday and Tuesday, from stands in the White House and Popular, netted something like $20 to the fund. Mrs. Albion A. Jones, Mrs. W. H. Pliska, Mrs. H. L. Blaney and Mrs. Walter Williams, all of the party, Mrs. Jones announces that there are still a few daisy and chrysanthemum plants, honeyuckle and carnus bulbs on hand that may be had by phoning 3124.

Special Feature OF THE DAY!

Aside From the Thousands of Other Bargains, $15 and $20 Evening, Party and Dance Dresses $5.95

There are just 50 to sell—beauties every one—a dozen different styles and as many or more materials. You will want to attend this sale early in the day, for these dresses will go. They are gowns such as you would never dream of being sold, sacrificed, at such a price, such a very low price. Come early.

$15.00 Evening Party and Dance Dresses $5.95

ALTHOUGH evening dress has been transcended by the war, the first lady of the land, Mrs. Wilson, has decided to appear in formal evening clothes on formal occasions. In more peaceful times we looked to New York rather than Washington for fashion's dictates, but now we take orders in this, as in many things, from Pennsylvania avenue, rather than Fifth. The wearing of a dignified evening gown, with a slightly low neck, and at least the suggestion of sleeves, has been accepted as in nowise interfering with the patriotic woman's duty to help with the war in every possible way. A gown of black satin and net, with trimmings, is a war investment. Because such frock will last longer, the model illustrated is a delightful example of this type of gown. A crimson flower at the circle will relieve the somberness of all black.

MacDowell Club Prepares A Good Program For Its Wednesday Meeting

PROGRAM gleaned entirely from MacDowell's compositions has been chosen by the MacDowell club for the illustrated recital which the wife of the late musician will give in this city the evening of Tuesday, May 8. Out of several lists, the following numbers were selected and announced at Tuesday's meeting of the local organization:

Prélude from Op. 18.
Fête day—Op. 22.
Mourning—Op. 11.
"To a Water Lily."
"Will of the Wind."
—Woodward Sketches.
Large from Santa Virginia.
The Eagle—Op. 22.
"Winter"—Op. 22.
"Hinter Takt"—A German Tale.
"The Swan"—A German Tale.
—From the collection of sea pieces.
"A. B. C."—Op. 11.
Witch's Dance—Op. 11.
Mrs. Edward MacDowell has, since the passing of her illustrious husband, been centering her activities in the MacDowell Memorial association, appearing in most of the large cities of the states, and will tell of the work when she comes to El Paso.

Tuesday's program by the local musicians was a continuation of standard opera selections, begun a fortnight ago, and proved to be one of the best of the season of the youngest auxiliary of the Woman's club music department. Mrs. J. J. Pearce and Mrs. W. L. Brown accompanied in their usual efficient style. The features being:

(a) Caprice in A-flat major from "Alceste."
Fête day—Op. 22.
(b) Arrangement for left hand of "Lento de Lammormoor."
—Mrs. K. J. Kaster.
Paper on Verdi—Mrs. Alden Grondorf.
Paraphrase on "The Swan"—Mrs. D. L. Kaster.
Romance, "Tannhauser"—Wagner.
Aria, "Il Trovatore"—"Miserere."
Aria, "Il Trovatore"—"Miserere."
Piano duo, "Romance and Gavotte."
Mrs. Pearce and Mrs. Brown have recently made Los Angeles their home.

High School Boys and Girls Work Hard To Help U. S. Win The War

ALTHOUGH the high school boys cannot take an actual part in the war, the great war, as khaki clad the boys, volunteers for the war work will long be remembered.

Last fall when there came the urgent call for Red Cross bandages, the girls and women teachers of the high school answered with such enthusiasm and in such large numbers that the number of bandages made soon soared high above the actual quota. Later came the big Red Cross stamp drive, and the entire student body bought willingly of the "helpful little helper." Then, only a few days ago, the girls and boys found it their opportunity to lend their money to the government. Not only did individuals invest in the Liberty bonds, but the different classes of the school each purchased one, while others extended their share to two. And, while nearly every student was doing his or her bit by various methods, either in school or home life, there came the sale of their war saving stamps, and as before, the students bought "until it hurt."

At the time of this big third stamp campaign, the various schools of the city participated in a contest. High school would be the winner, which was awarded to the school selling the greatest number of stamps. Now, war saving societies are being organized at the high school, and the girls who buy the stamps, and buy systematically, are to be members.

As the call for Red Cross bandages came to the girl students, a call of a significance has now come to the boys. Volunteers for the "Boy Agricultural Reserve Corps." The boys are all in favor of the work and many are enrolling as members of the corps. As before, when any great work was to be accomplished at the high school, the students assemblies have been given to the discussion of the work and need of the Red Cross.

While this week the city sees the membership of the Red Cross grow, the boys and girls are helping in obtaining the new members, and also in selling tickets for the "Wakeup America" entertainment given by the Red Cross.

Tell this story to the little ones: Once upon a time there was a man cutting grass with a scythe. As the people passed by they noticed that the way he worked seemed to have something to do with what he had for breakfast. One morning he had for breakfast, one morning he had for breakfast, one morning he had for breakfast. Coffee and cakes did not seem to be the right thing. But one morning there was a smile upon his face, the scythe was swinging back and forth right merrily. "Well, and here, look out for your legs, butter and eggs—I'll take it in kind."
